MEINHARDT IN FOCUS

At Meinhardt, we believe that by adhering to our key initiative to fight against Corruption in all its forms we will ultimately ensure a safe and ethical work environment. To ensure the effectiveness of our Anti-Corruption Programme, we regularly communicate to our business associates and provide staff training regarding the programme and important topics. We recently held the first four staff training sessions via teleconference on June 10th, focusing on the topic of Conflicts of Interest, particularly for those staff exposed to higher risks. The trainings were conducted by Khun Chaichana Chainiwes, the Anti-Corruption Steering Committee Leader.

“Corruption is one the major obstacles for doing business in Thailand. We need to equip our people with knowledge. This is to make sure the principles are well understood and are strictly adhered to, so that we can fight off the issues the best we can.”

FACT IN FOCUS

To date, it is great to see the number of certified companies with the Thai CAC (Thai Private Sector Collective Action Against Corruption) within Thailand's private sector increase to 472 companies with 1078 companies having voluntarily joined the CAC initiative and declared intent against all forms of corruption. These numbers continue to increase every year. However, of key importance is the implementation of CAC certified companies to continue monitoring and communicating the established risks and controls to make sure that they are current and effective towards mitigating current and new risks.
